Volunteerism - part of what makes Canada great!

As Canada celebrates its 150th birthday, we thought we'd reflect on what we feel is an integral part of the bedrock of this great nation. No, not our love of hockey or Tim Hortons . . . we're talking about the enthusiastic willingness of each and every one of us to volunteer our time to help make our communities great.

A quick survey of our own employees and directors showed just how involved we are in our communities. More than half of UBCU staff and directors volunteer regularly with one or more nonprofit community groups.

One staff member from our Union Bay branch, for example, has volunteered more than 50 hours this year alone with the Union Bay Community Club. She says she wants to show her community spirit and ensure she never loses sight of those community values.

You will see our staff and directors at local fall fairs, Halloween parties, schools, music festivals, community clubs, senior housing initiatives, family days and many other community events where an extra pair of hands makes the work lighter and fun.

Our CEO, Sharon McGarvey, who has likewise volunteered a great many hours to local nonprofits, perhaps best sums up the reasons we do so:

"Showing our children the value of a strong, united community helps them appreciate that sense of belonging," she says, "The community benefits when we join together to create something that's greater than the sum."

Perhaps you'll join us in celebrating Canada's 150th birthday in a distinctly Canadian way - by volunteering with a local nonprofit. Happy birthday Canada!

HE DRIVING FORCE BEHIND RE-FURBISHING OUR HALL, rather than tearing it down to build a concrete block monstrosity. This is how one person who worked closely with Carol McPherson describes her years of volunteerism. "That really means all the improvements to the Hall, including straightening out the walls, upgrading the kitchen, re-doing the floor, putting on a new roof, really improving the stage, getting that new sign, those are all projects she supported. Not alone of course, many, many volunteers were involved, but she kept us focused.

Her support went beyond the hall to the community. She has always been interested in protecting our water supply, preserving and opening up existing rights of way, liaising with like minded groups in the Comox Valley, and of course, worked hard against the proposed coal mine. She has been a record keeper, and many of the reminders and all the meetings. She has always been instructions at the Hall are written in her interested and supportive of local politihandwriting.

Stating the obvious -fish depend on water!

Streams mirror weather trends. Too wet and streams are in flood and too hot, the streams dry up as they are starting to do now. The Union Bay volunteers are salvaging fish in Hart, Hindoo and Emily Creeks, transferring them down to the Rosewall hatchery to enjoy clean cool water and plenty of food. Volunteers in Fanny Bay are also doing the same at McNaughton and Cook Creeks. Rosewall Creek, so far, is still flowing but that could change quite quickly. The volunteers are out daily scooping up the stranded coho fry and moving them to our hatchery to reside until the fall when they can safely be returned to their natal streams. This is one of the most satisfying jobs – A 'Fish Search & Rescue' operation!

This year we didn't have just one smolt counting fence but three: Cook Creek (Relic Channel), Mud Bay Creek and Wilfred Creek Side Channel. Fish, frogs, salamanders, you name it, if it was in the trap it got counted. Daily our volunteers stopped by the traps to clear them out and record information that will be sent to DFO as part of the research of East Coast Vancouver Island creeks and the movement of juvenile coho in the spring. Cook Creek had 1061 coho smolts, Mud Bay Creek, 908 and Wilfred Creek 2,161. Notably, Wilfred Creek has a considerable sized side channel which is great habitat for coho. I'm sure most people have heard of the sudden cuts to the Salmon Enhancement Program a few weeks ago: loss of the education program to the schools, technical support for volunteers and Community Advisors and loss of DFO Engineers. It was potentially a huge blow but thanks to the amazing number of people in BC sending letters, emails and voice mails to Ottawa, the tide was turned and the cuts rescinded. Gratifying to know that when enough people pull together the government does listen!

Come and join the 'search' crew on a Wed or Sat work party and learn more about what our volunteers do. Our hours of operation are 9 am to 12 pm, Rosewall Creek on Berray Road. For more information, visit our website www.fbses.ca.

S THE WATER PROJECT CONSTRUCTION continues, there have been a number of questions arising from the community.

Why do ratepayers have to install an expansion tank?

The choice to install an expansion tank is up to each ratepayer, and some homes will not require such a device. We recommend that homeowners have their plumbing system inspected by a licensed professional to determine whether it is up to code and able to respond to thermal expansion from, for example, the hot water heater. An expansion tank relieves pressure in the home's plumbing system by accepting small amounts of water caused by the build up of pressure from heat expansion. Newer or recently renovated homes may have already had an expansion tank installed, and those with on-demand water heating systems won't require one.

Why is SPID increasing the water pressure?

We are not increasing the water pressure. Heating causes water to expand, which may increase pressure in the pipes of a home's plumbing system. Previously, water may have flowed back into the public water system as a means of relieving that pressure. The installation of back flow preventers will stop this, causing the pressure to remain within the homeowner's side of the system.

Why isn't the expansion tank included as part of the Water Project costs?

Any money spent by SPID to address this improvement would ultimately be paid by all ratepayers. Since many ratepayers will not require an expansion tank, either because they've already installed one or have other systems that preclude the need for one, it is unfair to ask that they share in this expense.

Why isn't SPID organizing contractors to install an expansion tank in my home?

SPID does not engage contractors to work on ratepayers' private property, nor do we recommend contractors. SPID cannot assume liability for any work done in ratepayers' homes.

Please check our website for ongoing updates of the water project, spid.ca, or contact via phone or text the following SPID board members with questions or concerns:

OF UGE BOUQUETS HAPPINESS & SUNSHINE to all who came out and supported us and bought our treasures, raffle tickets, baking and food at our concession. You are the reason our garage sale was a success and we thank you very much. Congratulations to our raffle prize winners: BBQ -Ted McArthur; Power Washer - Keith Shillito; Garden/Entertainment Basket- Lavaun Dainard; Oil Change at Union Bay Automotive - Darlene Coburn.

To all of our members who gave of their time and talents by selling garage sale treasures inside and outside, worked at the concession, the ladies who provided lunches and dinner, the guys who sold raffle tickets and the ladies who baked and non-members who came out to help us, we thank all you with our hearts.

A special thank you to Fran and Bruce who worked tirelessly to organize and plan our Garage Sale. They were there to help and guide us every step of the way. Their energy and positive attitude was contagious and kept us cheerful when the whole venture seemed overwhelming. We cannot thank them enough for their contribution which helped make our Garage Sale the great success it was.

Next up is our annual picnic to be held Tuesday, July 11th at 3:00 PM. The theme is Canada Day as we are celebrating our country's 150th birthday. The club is providing the main dish and members will be called for any potluck items that are required. Please bring your own lawn chairs, your beverage of choice and wear red white if you

OUR FANNY BAY ASSOCIATION board has often recognized the need of a volunteer co-ordinator to take the task that last step. Many people have signed up over the years to help out, only to sit at home not knowing when they might be needed. Cece Henderson has volunteered to take on this job and drafted her own job description. "The main duty of a Volunteer Coordinator is matching the skills, experience, and expectations of volunteers to available positions. The role of volunteer coordinator may need to be adapted to suit particular situations and may change as an organisation develops.

A Volunteer Coordinator could be responsible for the following duties:

- Identify how many volunteers needed and for what roles
- Writing position descriptions
- Calling and recruiting volunteers

- Request relevant background checks from volunteers when required, such as working with children
- Assist developing volunteer recognition

Assist with volunteer communications such as social media and newsletters. As mentioned, the role may need to be adapted to suit particular situations in the future."

Thank you, Cece Henderson

BATTLE OF THE SEXES PICKLEBALL TOURNAMENT OUTCOME? GENTS WIN SECOND STRAIGHT YEAR After a hard fought battle between the sexes, the men reigned victorious for a second year. Although the women fared better than last year, they weren't able to defeat the men

The tourney started at 9:00 am with coffee, muffins, warm-up and a poem presented by the ladies to bolster their confidence and rattle the men's. Unfortunately, the poems seemed to have had the opposite effect goading the men into bringing their A-game to the court. After the morning social, the games began in earnest at 9:30 with the ladies securing first serve and choice of court.

The men came onto the court determined to win and as such, they proceeded to dominate the first five games. The women, who had something to prove at this point, came out fighting and finally received their first victory supplied by the strong team of Erin Sellers and Jackie Grant. The scores afterward see-sawed back and forth with lots of fast-paced action on the court. At the end of the day though, it was the men who secured their second straight tournament victory.

After all 48 games were played, the men had won a total of 35 games compared to the ladies 13 games.

The top male scorer, in the tournament, was Glenn Mendoza with a total of 165 points. Alaine French was the top female scorer with 72 points. The twelve participating females each played a total of 8 games and the eight males each played 15 games.

The ladies accepted their second defeat with grace, vowing to change the outcome in 2018. The men took great pride in attaching the year "2017" onto the blue side of the two-sided Battle of the Sexes trophy. The trophy is painted half pink and half blue with the year being placed on the winning sexes side. (For those interested, the trophy is proudly displayed in the Fanny Bay Hall trophy cabinet for all to see.) The men not only received individual trophies to take home but were also treated to a drink at the expense of the ladies at the local restaurant, "Ship & Shore Marine".

To make the tourney even more exciting, the picklers picked their best guesses for the top male scorer, top female scorer, point spread and Fanny Bay double hit plays (unique to Fanny Bay) in the tournament. Curtis Johnson won the cash prize for the best guesses. Congrats, Curt!!

There were plenty of laughs throughout the tourney, masterful plays and rallies and as always, lots of excitement on the court. A good day was had by all the picklers, especially ones of the male persuasion!

BOATING SEASON HAS ARRIVED PLAY IT SAFE

important of part vour Personal Safety Equipment is a boater's life jacket or PFD. Let's take a closer look at what you need to know about one of the most important pieces of safety equipment a boater can own. Life Jackets can be found in both 'Standard' and 'Small Vessel' styles and are available in both youth and adult sizes. They are red, orange or yellow in colour, feature a 'keyhole' or 'vest' design and are typically bulkier and more uncomfortable than PFDs. Manufactured with increased flotation in the front of the jacket, life jackets are designed to turn an unconscious person face up in the water. There are a few different types of life jackets:

SOLAS (Safety Of Life At Sea)

Life jackets: These offer the best performance and will turn an unconscious person face up and out of the water in seconds.

Standard Life jackets: These feature a high degree of buoyancy and will turn an unconscious person face up and out of the water but are typically uncomfortable to wear while boating.

Small Vessel Life jackets:

These are also designed to turn an unconscious person face up, but are not as buoyant and have less turning ability. Life jackets should fit slightly loose in order to allow water under the front of the jacket so that it can function properly. All zippers, fasteners, buckles and straps should be adjusted to ensure a proper fit.

Although you can choose between life jackets and PFDs, life jackets offer a higher level of protection.

Personal Flotation Devices (PFDs) are more comfortable and less restrictive than life jackets. PFDs are designed to keep a person afloat but are NOT designed to turn an unconscious person face up in the water. PFDs come in keyhole, vest, coat and coverall designs. Child, youth and adult sizes are available and should be fitted to the size of the person wearing the device. PFDs should fit snugly but not restrict the free movement of arms and legs.

Inflatable PFDs: have a carbon dioxide cartridge that is used to inflate the PFD. Once inflated, the PFD is able to keep the person afloat. They are very comfortable and compact to wear and come in various styles including waist pouches, vests and those that automatically inflate, versus more basic styles that require manual inflation. The rules for inflatable PFDs:

- Only approved for use by persons 16 years or older that weigh more than 36 kilograms.
- Must be worn at all times while on deck or in the cockpit of an open boat.
- Must be readily available to persons below deck on boats equipped with cabins.
- Not approved for use on personal watercrafts or during white water activities.

Testing Life Jackets and PFDs for buoyancy at the start of each season and on a regular basis throughout the season.

Even if they are new!

How to test a flotation device:

- 1. Put on and properly fit the life jacket or PFD and wade into chest deep water.
- 2. Bend your knees and float onto your back.
- 3. Ensure the life jacket or PFD keeps your chin above the water and permits proper breathing.

Children should also test their life jackets or PFDs to ensure proper fit and buoyancy. Have your child follow the same procedures in a controlled environment under parental supervision.

Maintaining your Life Jackets and PFDs

Life jackets and PFDs are designed to save lives. But in order for them to do their job, you have to take care of yours. It is each boater's responsibility to maintain and care for their flotation device on a regular basis. Here are a few tips:

Verify that the life jacket or PFD is appropriate for your size and weight (if a boater falls overboard when wearing a PFD that is too small, it may not support the weight of that person)

- Check that it fits snugly but allows for freedom of movement.
- If purchasing a life jacket or PFD for another person, ensure that it will fit that person.
- Never use them as cushions, bumpers or fenders, they may become damaged and less effective.
- They should be air-dried out of direct sunlight and away from a direct heat source.
- When not in use they should be stowed onboard your boat in a dry, well -ventilated area.
- Store them in an easily accessible location and never in the proximity of gasoline or chemicals.
- Inspect your life jackets and PFDs regularly, if ripped or damaged, they should be replaced.

Remember that inflatable PFDs require more technology, which means they must be maintained more often than other types of life jackets and PFDs. (the owner's manual will provide all the additional information you need)

AST YEAR I WATCHED HELPLESSLY as a commercial Co came into our area in late July and pruned bushes etc. The theory of the owners and business were the hummingbirds had had their nesting time. Wrong !! Some of these birds had and do nest more than once.

To whom this may concern. Before you decide to prune your trees and bushes in mid July to mid August be aware that hummingbirds may be either late or second nesting in them. Last year I watched helplessly as their unseen nesting sights were cut down.

The once busy bird thoroughfare disappeared not to return for that season.

I'm sure it was just a lack of knowledge that brought about this tragedy to this interesting little visitor. So please live with your overgrown arboretum for a little longer this year. On behalf of the hummingbirds I thank you.

Yours faithfully Wilma J Avery

"Spring (and summer!) are busy baby season procrastinate now! When is wildlife nesting? There is some variation, but most wild animals have their babies in the spring, between March and June. However, many species will also have a second brood in July or August if food supplies are sufficient.

If you can plan to trim your trees in the winter months, you can completely avoid the possibility of damaging a nest.

It's also a healthier time for the trees, when the sap has gone down and trees will be in their dormant phase.

Call WildCare at 415-456-7283 if you're unsure when it is a safe time to trim or remove a tree. "
