SHIPS POINT IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT

New Ventilation Index Interactive Map

All Ships Point residents should be aware of Provincial limits on open burning based on the Ventilation Index forecast. Open burning is restricted when the Ventilation Index is POOR or FAIR; burning is allowed only when the Index is in the GOOD range. The province has a new interactive map that takes the guess work out of whether open burning is allowed:

<https://www2.gov.bc.ca/gov/content/environment/air-land-water/air/air-pollution/smoke-burning/ventilation-index>.

The index is also updated daily at spid.ca.

Ships Point Volunteer Fire Department wants you!

We are always in need of new volunteers to fill the ranks. Application forms for both regular and auxiliary positions are available at the SPID office. Learn new skills, enjoy being part of a team and give back to your community. For more information, please e-mail Fire Chief Terry Hoffart at spvfd@shaw.ca.

THE MONTH OF MARCH HAS FLOWN BY AND ONCE again we have endured losing an hour's sleep for Day-light Savings Time. The robins are back happily chirping us awake at 4am and now it really is time to finish up that fall cleanup in the garden!

March was a busy month for our Fanny Bay Seniors...lots of special events and activities to keep us all involved. The Celtic Chaos Ceilidh (how they get Kaa-lee out of that is a mystery!) was a wonderful event and the Irish Stew and Irish Biscuits were awesome!

Our calendar for April is rapidly filling up.

April 4th at 11am the Regional District Meeting takes place in Cumberland...we can't wait to see all the Easter bonnets! Let Fran know if you wish to attend...$5 covers all the entertainment, lunch and door prizes.

April 5th at 1pm the Senior Peer Counselling group meets again. If you are a caregiver be sure to take advantage of this valuable service.

April 10th at 2pm is our monthly meeting. We would be happy to have you join in if you would like to become a member of a very social and active group.

April 14th will be prep day for a brunch we are hosting so the cleanup is postponed to next Saturday.

April 19th the Watershed Protection Group will meet at 7pm. Bill Trussler is organizing this event and if you are interested in knowing what's happening with this critical resource, please attend. It's open to the public.

April 21st at 9am will be our annual cleanup day (weather permitting)...you will get a hearty lunch for a couple of hours of hard work...bring your gardening tools.

April 24th 5 pm Dinner Out at East Kitchen in Courtenay. All members are welcome to attend, give Carla a call at 250-335-3282 and she will sign you up. The cost is $15 the tip will be picked up by the OAP. (No potluck in April).

Don't forget our Gigantic Garage Sale is coming soon!
 For pick up call either Bruce at 250-335-1337
 or Walt at 250-335-2333

OAP REPORT

Happy April Birthday greetings to Louise Bradshaw, Jean Challand, Kay Edwards, Deb Gibos, Jean Morrow, Sylvia Radford, Ron Vermeulen and our new members Ernie and Margaret Anderson.

On a sad note, our dear friend Kay Edwards fell in her home a few weeks ago and cracked her pelvis. She has been in the new hospital in Comox ever since recovering and would love to see some familiar faces pop by to say hello.

Kay will be 94 April 16th!

We also wish to extend our heartfelt condolences to Linda Tournemille whose brother passed away recently. She spent most of February and part of March in Abbotsford to be with him while he was in palliative care, then hospice. It is such a deep loss to Linda and anyone who knew Larry.

Linda normally writes this column for the OAP... she'll be back soon!

IN NOVEMBER OF MOST YEARS, THE CHUM SALMON SPAWNING RUNS START

in mid-island streams like Rosewall Creek. Fanny Bay's fish-friendly geography creates a lot of streams and chum will return to the lower reaches of estuarial streams like Cowie, Cherry and Wilfred Creeks as well as Bob Springs and Waterloo. Chum are the fish who make the TV news on a regular basis after rains lead them to fin their way across flooded roads and into ditches and farm fields, not to mention oral history stories of streams once so full of thrashing spawners that they could keep you awake at night, as Warren Cook of Bowser who lived beside Chef Creek would tell you.

Once it was thought that chum were so plentiful and even common that no one needed to worry about their welfare, they would take care of themselves, and besides, they weren't worth any money. Chum are a lean fish, pale in flesh colour, but great for smoking; you don't want to smoke fat, and if you've ever bought any barbecued salmon, you've eaten chum. The price of that meat or jerky probably made you wonder how it could be called a cheap fish.

Fish experts don't dismiss chum; they do a job cleaning up streams for later arriving coho and Chinook, and their carcasses, so plentiful and easy to access by everything with talons and claws, are carried hundreds of meters into the surrounding trees to add to the nitrogen that everything green needs to grow. (But fish experts aren't trying to sell you dressed sockeye fillets.)

At the FBSES, our volunteers and workers from Biq Qualicum Hatchery went out on a crisp but bright day into Rosewall and in a few short, but intense, hours returned with enough eggs, milt and brood stock to amount to the 67,727 fertilized chum eggs that are now squirming masses of alevins (fish fry which still have some egg yolk attached) in our incubation trays. At an average .35 gram weight - it would take 90 of them to make an ounce - they have nowhere to go but up. In April they'll be about half a gram, bright silver on their sides, dark on top and an impressive 25 to 30 millimeters long. These little guys and girls will leave us in their multitudes and return as large as 4.5 kilos (10 pounds) and a meter, (3 feet) long in three years or so.

In just a month, Fanny Bay Salmonid Enhancement Society will hold its 11th annual The River Never Sleeps Festival Sunday May 6th at the site on Berray Road. Stop by from 10am - 3pm Bring your neighbors, grandkids (and their parents) and enjoy our hospitality, educational booths and family friendly prices on oysters and hot dogs. Sorry, but no smoked salmon. FBSES is online at www.fbSES.ca

COMMUNITY MEETING WITH AREA A DIRECTOR BRUCE JOLIFFE There has been concern in Fanny Bay over the past year with thefts, residents hearing people on their property at night, and housing offered by some landlords which seems inadequate for the tenants.

Comments posted on-line complain of poor response to calls for action from the police. We have invited our Area Director to attend a meeting in May to hear these concerns and perhaps help develop a plan around what can and cannot be done. On St Patrick's Day we hosted an outside bar and managed to make a few dollars while having all kinds of green fun!

FANNY BAY NATURALLY

Lysichiton americanus - I saw the first one of the year on St. Patrick's Day. No, it's not some sort of leprechaun; it's a plant, and one of my favourites despite its most notorious characteristic - its odour.

American or western skunk cabbage, as it commonly known, is one of only a few native species in the arum family. Also known as yellow arum or Skeena lily, skunk cabbages grow in damp woodlands and swamps and can tolerate a wide range of soil, light, and water conditions, and survive temperatures as low as -15C. Native distribution of the skunk cabbage is confined to western North America, reaching south to California, north to Alaska, and westward to include Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming. A similarly named plant, with a similar smell, is the eastern skunk cabbage (Symplocarpus foetidus), found only in eastern North America.

The skunk cabbage heralds spring with a stiff flowerhead bursting forth in late winter. When the flowerhead opens to reveal the 12 to 20" high flower stalk, the bright yellow colour and resemblance to a candlestick protected by a cupped hand explain yet another of its common names - swamp lantern.

A little later in the spring, bright green waxy leaves emerge from underground rhizomes, and can grow up to 28" wide and 60" tall in the most favourable conditions. Leaves remain until late summer to early fall and then flop to the ground and die back until the following spring.

The spicy skunky scent of the many small flowers, densely packed along the stalk, fills the air for a good distance around the plant, attracting flies, midges, and beetles to act as pollinators for the plant. Berries then form along the stalk, and when they ripen, the stalk bends over and lies on the ground or water to disperse the seeds, which germinate the following spring or remain dormant for up to six years. Skunk cabbages can form dense stands that may survive for up to 80 years!

British Columbia First Nations used the leaves for lining baskets and steaming pits, as well as for wrapping food. Leaves were also made into poultices for burns and other injuries. The leaves have a spicy peppery taste but are rarely eaten because they contain calcium oxalate crystals - highly irritating to the tongue, mouth, and digestive system, and temporarily paralyzing the salivary glands. However, well-boiled roots were eaten in times of famine and used as medicine. Bears often eat the roots after hibernation as a laxative.

Skunk cabbage was introduced from North America to the United Kingdom in 1901 as an attractive ornamental perennial for marshy areas, and eventually earned the Royal Horticultural Society's Award of Garden Merit. Ironically, It is now banned from sale and subject to strict controls under the EU Regulation on Invasive Alien Species after "escaping" from cultivated gardens in 1947 and naturalizing in some areas of the UK. However ecological impacts seem to be minimal and localized.

Skunk cabbage or swamp lantern, no matter what you call this striking plant, "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet" is certainly not apt, but I think it's a cheerful harbinger of spring, and reminds me Wordsworth's "host of golden daffodils; Beside the lake, beneath the trees." Indeed "my heart with pleasure fills" every year, when I first come upon one of these golden beauties of the wild.
